

SOCIETY

The entire attention of society for the past week was centered upon the big bazaar given by the Blues in their armory. The great hall was transformed into a perfect bower of loveliness and picturesque costumes, really good programs and all sorts of unique and fascinating features, drew hundreds of people there every afternoon and evening. The whole thing was unfolded like a wonderful play of many acts, each complete in itself, and the brilliant crowds that thronged the armory all week made the affair more like some foreign carnival than a simple bazaar. Mrs. Fred Pleasants was general chairman of the committees, and the numbers of prominent women connected with the entertainment did splendid work under her capable direction.

The booths for the bazaar, planned and arranged by E. G. Lambert, of Company 1, assisted by Mr. McCreary, were veritable works of art, and the whole place was like Wonderland. It has been many years since such a spectacular affair has been undertaken in Richmond, and the whole event was a huge success from beginning to end. For the coming week the social calendar holds but little of interest. The spring season is here, and that, as every one well knows, is practically no season at all in Richmond. Owners of country places run up or down, as the case may be, and see to the putting of things to rights. The planting of gardens and window boxes, both in and out of town, is an absorbing topic, and one exchanges seeds and roots with the neighbor next door or the farm across the river, as well as presenting choice gifts in the way of lettuce plants to the woman who is essaying a garden in town. After the country places are in order, several interesting house parties have been planned, in which society folk will play a prominent part, and with the coming of May the first departures from town will begin.

This week society is vastly interested in the big charity bazaar at the Superior Theater on Tuesday, which is given under the direction of the Richmond Kindergarten Association. Large audiences will fill the theater for the affair, and the chapters include a number of well-known people.

BRIANT WHITE

Luncheon for Miss Newton.

William G. standard was hostess at a prettily appointed luncheon at the Country Club of Virginia yesterday in honor of her guest, Miss Roberta Pace Newton, of Norfolk. The luncheon table was set with a centerpiece of spring flowers and covers were laid for twelve. Mrs. Standard invited to meet Miss Newton Miss Carter Ingram, Miss James Hensley, Miss Mary Johnson, Miss Eleanor Eyster, Miss Roberta Pace Pleasants, Miss Louise Wilmer, Miss Elizabeth Owen, Miss Evelyn Byrd Warwick, Miss Mary Morris and Mrs. John Gilliam Moore.

Miss Newton will remain in Richmond until the latter part of this week. At the Woman's Club. A business meeting of the Woman's Club is called for Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the clubrooms to discuss plans for the erection of an auditorium. The meeting is one of the utmost importance and all members are urged to attend promptly, to hear the discussion of plans and other information that will be given. Plans have been on foot for some time past to erect an auditorium for the club and every member is asked to give the matter her attention. Proxies will be in order at this meeting.

Charity Tea.

The Industrial chapter of the Holy Trinity Church will give a charity tea at the residence of Mrs. Stansbury Wilson, 503 West Third Street, on Tuesday afternoon from 1 to 7 o'clock. The proceeds of the affair will be sent to the widow of a clergyman who is in great need, and all interested in the tea are cordially invited to attend. Some of those who have the entertainment in charge are Mrs. Charles E. Bolling, Mrs. Arthur P. Wilmer, Mrs. A. D. Laidley, Mrs. Stansbury Wilson, Mrs. E. C. Crawford, Mrs. Freeman Dancy, Mrs. George B. Jennings, Miss Bell, Miss Nash, Mrs. L. E. Womble, Mrs. E. R. Ingram, Mrs. M. J. Adams, Mrs. I. Robinson, Mrs. S. E. Nichols, Mrs. C. T. Norman, Mrs. Robert Chamberlaine and Mrs. E. Cradwick. The young girls serving will include Misses Lattie and Mabel Wilson, Alice and Marion Meredith, Eva Jennings, Elizabeth Dancy and Jane Stradwick.

Interesting Entertainment. The Annie Elliott Memorial Circle has arranged a charming program for the entertainment to be given by them on Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. R. T. Hunter, 215 East Franklin Street. All sorts of interesting and unique features for the evening have been planned, and local artists will take part in it. All interested are invited to attend.

John Powell at Richmond College. John Powell will give a concert at the Richmond College auditorium under the auspices of the Collegian weekly party Monday evening, May 3, at 8:20 o'clock. Mr. Powell's program, as usual, will be of interest and inspiring to lovers of music. The roads to Westhampton are beautiful, and the moon light will be shining beneficent to Richmond society, as the auditorium is a semi-enclosed structure on the bank of Westhampton Lake. This is the second time that Mr. Powell has appeared in Richmond in such close communion with nature.

Pretty Home Wedding. At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Edwin Simey Reid, at Chatham, Thursday night at 9 o'clock, in the presence of friends and relatives, Miss Belle Reid was married to William L. Moore, a well-known young business man of Lynchburg, Rev. C. O. Pruden, pastor of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, being the officiating minister.

Mrs. William Young Noel, of Danville, was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Lillie Moore, sister of the groom, in green tulle, trimmed with lace, and the two sisters of the bride, Miss Lillie Reid, in pink tulle, and Miss Nannie Reid, in white tulle. All carried slender bouquets of sweet peas. The best man was Lawrence Anderson, of Lynchburg.

Preceding the bride, Miss Belle Reid Martin, in white chiffon lace, seated in a pink sweet pea train. The bride entered with her brother, E. Sidney Reid, who gave her away. She wore a gown of Georgette crepe, trimmed with duchesse lace, with overdress of tulle embroidered in pearls and wore a coronet of orange blossoms over lace cap and bridal veil, which fell to the end of her court train. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony a reception was given and while the guests were assembling, P. A. Martin, of Chatham, sang, and Mrs. G. B. Barrow, of Charlottesville, played. Dr. J. K. Hall introduced the guests to those in the receiving line, which was composed of the bride's party and the bride's mother, Mrs. Claude A. Seaton, who welcomed the guests to the dining room, which was in charge of

Continue as Town Talk

TWO of our customers came direct from New York, and in buying new Blouses here, remarked that styles and qualities evidently the same were selling in New York at two and three dollars more. Another customer formerly living in Richmond sends us for her Blouses, because she says styles (price considered) are so unsatisfactory in New York. She is now living just outside New York City.

Crepes de Chine, Crepes Georgette, Venetian Crepes, Jockey Stripes, Lace, Chiffon and Net Costume Blouses, Norfolk Blouses; Plastron effects. A splendid complete assortment for mourning. Models new and essentially charming, $3.50 and $5.00.

Parasols Par-excellence

NOVELTIES galore in gay silks and dainty chiffons—models strikingly effective, both in clever design and color combination. Notable among the newest:

"Manhattan Maid," with sharply pointed petal like gore; in black and white stripes or floral effects.

"Coquette," a Parasol of bright hued satin and flowered tulle, smartly combined in double sectional effect.

The "Double Palm," white crepe poplin, makes the upper half charming; black and white striped satin the lower.

"Yum yum," a Japanese model with high sharp peak and long handle in Japanese patterns.

Many other novelties, including the most successful Paris and London models are displayed in the Parasol Department.
